Water Consumption Follow-up Drip or Flood

Our last month's Newsletter discussed many causes of extra water usage. One was left off that list that could result in more water consumption. That would be the use of a water powered sump pump.

A water powered sump pump uses 1 gallon of your village's water to pump out either 1 or 2 gallons of water from your sump pump basin. Using the ratio of 1 to 2 at 1,000 Gallons Per Hour (GPH), this system will use 5,000 gallons of water to prevent 10,000 gallons from flooding the basement. Another fact is that a water powered sump pump requires a minimum of 20 PSI to operate. Since it does use water, and if it runs unabated have you consider the cost to operate?

Some water powered sump pumps are not maintenance-free. Their instruction manual states a filter needing to be installed in the water supply line to remove particles before they reach the pump. These pumps need to be manually activated once a month to prevent calcium deposits and debris from building up in the unit, or the pump may fail.

The water powered sump pumps operate quietly which is a nice feature, except when the ON/OFF switch breaks, as it can break in the ON position, which means the pump will run continuously using your home water supply.

Some electric sump pump with a battery backup, can run up to 166 hours depending on how often it cycles (and you can also add additional batteries if needed to make it last even longer).

James Welsh, Water Operator, worked with a resident that noticed a doubling of their water bill. Mr. Welsh discovered the water powered sump pump was coming on every few minutes. While this may be better than water in the basement, it can be a very expensive alternative to electricity. A thousand gallons of water will cost $19.81. The estimated usage for a water powered sump pump is 180 gallons per hour or 4,320 per day or 129,600 per month. It is not likely that it would operate continuously but you can see by the numbers it could become expense. $86 for 24 hours that could be spread over a number of days.

You may hear a water powered sump pump is a "Green" alternative or will cost less for the equipment set-up. This article is not to tell you what to do but to inform you about the possible results of not monitoring your sump pump.

Some municipalities will not approve a water powered sump pump because of the wasted drinking water. There is also a concern about a water line being connected to a sump pump discharge line carrying "greywater", in case there is a backup from the sump pump.

Dog and Cat Full Service Salon

Many people in Ashville have dogs, cats and other pets. In 2020, a new business opened in Ashville to serve that population. It is Remi Roos-Pet Salon. They have the following services:

- ◆ Grooming
- ◆ Bathing
- ◆ Toe nail trimming
- ◆ Anal gland expressing

a bath with tearless facial shampoo or one of many shampoos customized to what your pets skin needs. The salon has blowouts, haircuts, nail clipping and filing, and ear cleaning. Anal glands can be done upon request. Anal glands are expressed externally while a veterinarian expresses them internally. This results in the veterinarian being able get more expressed. The is affective when done in the tub before a bath, it tends to have an odor. If you are just needing anal glands done they can do this too. With a nail trimming service they will clip and file the nails to get them as short as possible. Nail filing is often a better alternative to clipping as the dog seems to not mind it as much. Its also a lifesaver for anyone that has hardwood floors.

Update on Recycle and Refuse E<sub>CO</sub>-Ashville

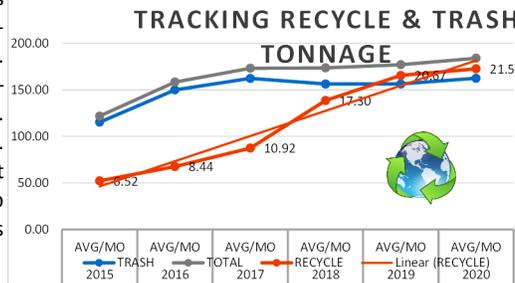

This article is about recycle/refuse data from 2015 through 2020 and monthly for 2020. Displayed in the below tables are averages, means, and yearly totals. Two important numbers can be seen in the tables. First, recycling has increased 231% since 2015. Second, refuse has increased 54% since 2015. To be precise, refuse appears to be leveling off at about 1,950 tons. Recycling is just 12% of the total. A good objective would be a drop in refuse. With an increasing population, Ashville can increase recycling and decrease landfill refuse. Celebrate the good news of the recycling trend in Ashville.

Now lets see if we can increase our efforts in less refuse. Some of the increase in refuse may be do to people working at home. Most of that work material—paper, cardboard, plastic, and glass can be recycled. Put a recycle container next to your desk. Once filled empty into the red totter that was provided by Local Waste Services. Help save our planet and save money. It cost less to recycle! <https://www.swaco.org/FAQ.aspx>
